

June 6th, 2014

Oxford House,
Bethnal Green, London

To celebrate Volunteers' Week, you are warmly invited to attend our interactive documentary drama about Untold Stories of volunteering which will be performed on stage on June 6th, 2014 at Oxford House, Derbyshire Street, Bethnal Green, London, E2 6HG.

Under the sponsorship of the Arts and Humanities Research Council, The New Vic Theatre (Newcastle under Lyme) has teamed up with Keele University and Leicester University and NCVO (National Council of Voluntary Organisations) to create with members of our communities a moving performance about volunteering. The drama explores the emotions, aspirations and frustrations the volunteer encounters on this journey towards a better society.

We will hold a pre-performance workshop to explore with a selected audience of volunteers, volunteer managers/coordinators, policy makers and researchers their understandings and ambitions regarding the role and place of volunteering in our society. The workshop will be followed by the drama performance. Following this, we invite you to take part in an evaluative workshop.

Pre-performance workshop	1.30
Performance	2.45
Evaluative workshop	4.15
Finish	5.15

We will provide snacks and refreshments and cover your travel expenses. To confirm your attendance, please contact Mihaela Kelemen, from Keele University on m.l.kelemen@keele.ac.uk who will be pleased to provide further details about the project.

Project website: <http://www.keele.ac.uk/volunteeringstories>

